The problem is that there is usually a cat on the book I want to read.

Mary Elder's Book review for The Calculating Stars*

The Calculating Stars is a wonderful mix of Historical Fiction and Sci-Fi, two of my very favorite genres. Set in the 1950's, this novel is a reimagining of the space race due to a catastrophic meteorite event, which obliterates

Washington D.C. and much of the eastern seaboard. Elma Wexler and her husband Nathaniel both work for the newly founded National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, he as an Engineer, she as a Computer. Elma's experiences as a WASP (Women's Airforce Service Pilots) during WW II and as a mathematician, give her a unique position as the world science community desperately works to put a man on the moon as quickly as possible. The author skillfully confronts the deeper issues of a woman's place and the rampant racial discrimination in the 1950's, while also paying attention to details that show the extraordinary amount of research she did on spaceflight, climate, and aeronautics. The Calculating Stars somehow manages to be a story that is grounded in reality and groundbreaking; and most importantly, utterly captivating. If you loved Hidden Figures, by Margot Lee Shetterly, this book is for you!

*This is the first book in the series. Book two is The Fated Sky, and book three is The Relentless Moon. All three are available at your library!

The book Terry Burke-Eiserling just finished is:

The Legend of Suzy High Kick by Wm Barnard.

This book was just an endearing read. I've never met Suzy, but I know her dad who wrote this book. The book is really a great compilation of his Suzyisms, so true to every picture I have seen of Suzy, and every story I have heard. Suzy was born with Down's Syndrome and yet she has never let it limit her from her dreams. She adapts well, she makes others happy and smiling...me too. This is somewhat of a true story, because in real life Suzy does become a cheerleader for her local high school. It is an education of the joys, laughter, and tears of a parent of a Down's child. The decisions that are made, and the judgments from others. Suzy though is a character! I found myself with this quick read, wondering what she would teach others, and what others would learn from her. Just plain heartwarming. I think any parent of a Down's child would love to read this book and relate to Suzy and her family. I once again came away from the book being so pleased that there are teachers in Special-Ed who see the brightness in those who are different. What a great teacher who asks "what is your number one dream" of each of these students and they all had dreams. Thank you for living out your dream Ms. Suzy!

TERRY'S RAMBLINGS!

New Library renderings will be coming to our community pretty soon. We hope to do numerous presentations throughout the community, and have a set of updated drawings in our library as soon as we can. We will keep you updated. Our Friends board members have had the opportunity to preview the drawings and honestly we are so proud, you will be too. Just a huge welcoming space, with so much to offer!!

Membership – always a huge need! Because of Covid our membership and renewals significantly dropped off. We need to build it back up! One suggestion is to purchase a membership for someone else...what a great idea!! You can go into the library now, so if you have a friend or neighbor who wants to become a Lakeside Friends member you can pick-up the yellow application form or become a member on-line at:

www.lakesidecafriends.org

Books are for sale in our library again, we will be rotating our books and putting new books out to replace those that get purchased so check out our new location for our Lakeside Friends used book sale!

In October we will try our very first Cookbook Sale!! Do people still use cookbooks...yes, just like we still put our hands on a good book and read it. Some friends groups have raised good money for their libraries through cookbook sales. So let's try it!!!

Book donations...we currently aren't taking them, but maybe within a month or so. We have limited storage space in our storage rental for used books. It has been pretty full, though we recently (thank you to our Leslie and Caprice) went through hundreds of books that you all have kindly donated. We pay for our own storage space it does not come from membership or any fundraising.

The San Diego County Libraries Book Mobile will be in our Lakeside Western Days Parade on Saturday, August 28th. Get it on your calendar! Did you know the Lakeside Chamber of Commerce puts on this parade for us every year. I love our family friendly community...and free fun!!

Spirit of Christmas is coming, also put on by our Lakeside Chamber of Commerce, on December 4th. We will have good used/new books for sale for Christmas gifts, and also a table full of surprises. All money raised stays with our current and new library.

See you all soon!!
